TO REGULATE INSURANCE.

Congressman Byrnes's Bill is to Stop "Wild Cat" Business.

Washington, June 19.—Congressman James P. Byrnes today introduced a bill to deny the use of the mails to insurance companies for the purpose of soliciting new business or collecting premiums on old business unless such companies are licensed in the State in which they attempt to conduct business. Mr. Byrnes says that this bill would not only checkmate the wild cat insurance schemes which have fleeced so much money out of the people, but in addition would prevent a company from coming into a state complying with its laws and securing its license for a year or two, and then when it had written a large number of policies withdrawing its deposits from the state, forfeiting its license and yet continuing to collect annual premiums out of the state.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution, and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Tales of GOTHAM and other CITIES

Orang-Outang Ties Knot in Half-Inch Iron Bar

NEW YORK.—All, the big orang-outang of the Bronx zoo, is going to have a new house with three-quarter-inch steel bars instead of his present one-half-inch iron stays. Following his transfer from Hagenback's in Berlin to the zoo on May 5, All passed a few sluggish days and then awoke to the fact that he has a reputation to live up to—the reputation of being the biggest orang-outang in captivity.

It became evident at once that the cage fixed up by Keeper Fred Engleholm was a misfit by several sizes. All tested his prison the other day and tied a fair imitation of a bowknot in one of the half-inch iron bars. Then he bent most of the remaining bars, opening more or less terrifying holes. Engleholm realizes that if All should get out, the gruesome tale of Edgar Allan Poe of what happened in the Rue Morgue would be uppermost in the minds of most folk, and there would be a great deal of unpleasantness.

There is no danger of All's getting out before his new cage is ready. The bulk that goes with his 215 pounds cannot be squeezed through the openings he has made. But there is enough peril to make the keepers wary of going too close within the fence inclosing the cage.

In a playful mood All, who has a nine-foot reach, measuring the extended arms across the shoulders, poked his hand through the bars, took hold of Engleholm's jumper and gave a yank. The buttons yielded. The orang-outang tore the garment from the man's back and jumped with it to the big boom in the upper regions of the cage, where All skins the cat and turns giant swings.

All's palms are nine inches broad, and Engleholm's arms are covered with black and blue spots where All has given him playful slaps.

Happenings When Clocks Were Set Ahead an Hour

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—"General Chaos," known and famed wherever the sun shines, strolled into Cleveland bringing eastern time with him and covered the bodies of nervous persons with goose flesh. Sixty perfectly good minutes were lost, and when the hunt for them began arguments without number were started.

Taxicab and transfer companies caught the brunt of the debates, and mildly excited patrons, nervous for fear they would miss their train, talked time with chauffeurs and drivers until the situation in some instances became almost alarming.

In front of the Hollenden hotel a large woman, whose expression betokened authority, backed a boy-sized chauffeur against his machine. "Are you running by eastern, central, sun time or guess?" she inquired.

"We are showing a complete line of time this morning. Take your pick," answered the youth. "But I'll tell you the truth, I'm running by guess today."

A real tragedy: A waiter in a lunchroom got home at midnight and set his alarm clock ahead an hour, setting the alarm for 4 a. m. His roommate came in an hour later, set the clock ahead another hour, thinking his sleeping companion had forgotten. The waiter showed up for work an hour ahead of the new schedule.

Bill Smith wouldn't turn his watch ahead Friday and he waited five minutes longer in the morning for a car because the rush hour extras had gone.

The boss scowled as he sneaked into the office and glanced significantly at the clock.

He was to meet his wife at two and give her tickets to the matinee. Wife missed the show because Bill showed up at three.

Bill arrived home to a cold dinner because wife had adopted eastern time, and—perhaps she remembered the show she missed.

"Corpse" Raids an Alleged Gamblers' Stronghold

CHICAGO.—In Forest Park the dust lay thick upon the road. Occasionally it was stirred by a passing automobile, but more frequently by some funeral cortege on its way to the cemetery. At Twelfth street and Hannah avenue William McGurn operated a saloon.

In the room above the bar on the second floor there were telephones, racing charts, playing cards, poker chips and dice—until the other day. Mr. McGurn, according to Charles W. Peters, chief deputy sheriff, was a cautious man. He acted on the theory that an ounce of prevention was worth a court full of lawyers.

So cautious was he, according to Mr. Peters, that all about his saloon at a radius of two miles he stationed "lookouts." These "minute men" furnished the saloon with immediate information of the approach of all strangers.

For some time Mr. Peters had his eye on Mr. McGurn and the little room above the saloon. The chief deputy sheriff polished up his star and went to the home of his assistant, Virtus Rohn, 5007 Washington boulevard.

"Virtie," said Mr. Peters, "I have some bad news for you."

"What's that?" asked Mr. Rohn.

"You're dead," announced the deputy sheriff. "You died this afternoon. I'm arranging for your funeral now. We're going to have a regular procession."

"Good night!" said Mr. Rohn, or words to that effect.

But Mr. Peters was determined. Thirty minutes later an automobile hearse, equipped with a coffin and other necessary paraphernalia, drew up in front of the house. Six black-clad "mourners" occupied another machine. The other automobiles were filled with "pallbearers" and friends of the "deceased." The "lookouts" were deceived.

Suddenly the mourners became active. "Corpse" and "mourners" raided the saloon.

"I said we'd 'pull' this place if we had to 'kill' a man to do it," said Mr. Peters.

City Hall Cat Actually Has a Correspondence

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—It is not often that a cat's mail becomes so heavy that he must have a secretary, but this is the fact with Strike, the pet feline of the electrical bureau at city hall. Strike actually has a correspondence—purely a social correspondence.

It developed through no effort on his part, but because persons visiting this city happened to see him and admired him and his tricks so much that they have insisted upon sending him letters and postcards on leaving here. His daily mail amounts to two letters and three or more postcards.

Of course, Strike does not actually employ a secretary, but his mail became heavy and had to be answered. Strike can do a lot of intelligent things, but he cannot write, so Jim Rourke, an attache of the bureau, has to act as Strike's secretary.

Although Strike cannot read, he appears fully to understand when one of his letters is read to him. He assumes and maintains a position of careful attention as each letter is read. If the letter is one in answer to a letter he received, he appears particularly attentive. His objections are noted by dragging his paw over the floor.

Strike is a truly wonderful cat. He came into the world as a very lowly, uneducated feline, but has so improved his mentality that he is now a feline of high degree. He was a kitten when he first entered the electrical bureau. His name came to him through the fact that during the street car strike of 1910 he was thrown by a striking motorman's wife at a non-union motorman. The woman was arrested, and when she was brought to city hall for a hearing she had the cat with her.

A SMART FROCK FOR DAY WEAR

EASY TO MAKE AT HOME

This newest vogue, the Dutch Skirt and simple blouse, is ideal for a summer day. As illustrated and made up, in our plain and striped Crepe, the cost of this costume is but ..... $2.69

And this is only one of a wide range of patterns we are showing for the summer season.

The deep tunic, called Dutch Skirt, and waist with the smart raglan sleeves, requires 6 yards of our 27-inch Crepe at 25c per yard. The narrow underskirt, sash, cuffs and flaring collar require 2 3/4 yards of 27-inch striped Crepe at 25c per yard.

The above price is for size 36 and includes the two McCall Patterns, Nos. 5979-5987, and everything necessary for making. Smaller or larger sizes at only slightly lower or higher figures.

There never was a time when the making of charming dresses was so easy as now, when the simplest draping makes expert tailoring unnecessary.
